Class History

One bright September morning, twelve years ago, a group of eager youngsters entered the First Grade at Meeker School. In that group were Clyde Sappington, Shirley Detwiler, Evelyn Herr, Jane Seiter, Marylin Hecker, Betty Jo Clark, and Anita Coon. Their teacher for the first two grades of school was Miss Hazel Layman.

Two new pupils transferring to Meeker from Pearl Street School, Marion, Ohio, increased our class enrollment: Roberta Sharp was transferred to the group in the third grade and Nancy Shults in the fourth grade. Mrs. Ruby Gompf was our third and fourth grade teacher.

As time went on we found ourselves entering the fifth grade with Miss Mary Smith as our teacher. Our sixth grade was taught by Mrs. Elpha Eichhorn and during this year another pupil, Ruth Purtee, joined us.

Then came a big change in our school program, our classes and our schedules. We were in Junior High! Mr. Richard Courtney was our seventh grade teacher and Mrs. Donna Freeman our adviser in the eighth.

At last, after being properly initiated as members of the freshman class, we were in high school. Mrs. Jane White was our adviser.

In our sophomore year, Mrs. Lois Preuninger became our class adviser and has worked with our class directing our activities throughout our junior and senior years. During our junior year our class enrollment grew steadily: Ronald Griffin transferred to Meeker from Roundhead, Diana Gettys and Jim Smith from Harding High School, Marion, Ohio, and Ernest Sparks from Prospect, Ohio. Along with our scholastic work, we found time for extra-curricular activities. Trying out our dramatic ability we participated in class plays, "Hillbilly Weddin'" in our junior year, and our senior play, "Good Night, Ladies." Some of our class, interested in sports, became members of the basketball and baseball teams.

During our senior year two students, Paul Meadows transferring from Claridon school and James Pfeiffer of Meeker, increased our class total to sixteen. Working together as a class we have prepared for one of the highlights of the year, our senior trip. As our high school learning days draw to a close with the approach of commencement activities, we feel confident and hopeful of the future and well prepared to assume our responsibilities in life.

The Senior Class

Class Prophecy

As we, the Class of 1955, start to tour the world in the year 1965, we, much to our amazement, see the members of the 1955 Senior Class of Meeker High School located in various parts of the globe.

Beginning our tour, we see a gigantic sign over Marion, Ohio, displaying these words, "Pfeiffer Incorporation of Space Ships." Stopping for a moment, whom do we see but Jim Pfeiffer who has just returned from a trip to Mars.

Arriving in San Francisco on Sunday morning, we decide to go to church. After seating ourselves, the organ begins to play and the Rev. Clyde Sappington takes his place in the pulpit. As the large choir enters and takes their places, much to our suprise, we notice that Ronald Griffin is the director.

As we leave the United States, we have our luggage checked by one of the 1955 graduates, Shirley Detwiler. As she rattles on at length about what she has been doing since graduation, we miss our first boat.

Our tour now takes us to Alaska. We see a familiar figure coming from an igloo on which there is a sign printed in bright red letters: "School, Grades 1 - 12". It is none other than Jane Seiter, Old Maid School Teacher, and caretaker of Sgt. Preston's dogs.

Since England is known as our mother country, let's stop and pay a visit to the Queen, Elizabeth. As we are admitted to her chamber we see the Queen's chief seamstress, Ruth Purtee, making a gown for the celebration of the sixteenth birthday anniversary of the Queen's son.

While touring France, our sweet tooth becomes active. As we walk down Girard Street, we hear a familiar voice calling, "Heck's Caramel Candy." Investigating further, we see Mademoiselle Sharp carrying a large tray of caramels. Roberta tells us that we would better understand the origin of the name Heck's if we went into the shop. Upon entering, we see a short, stocky person. Yes, it's Mademoiselle Hecker. Has the change in appearance been due to too much candy making, Marylin?

As we are flying over Switzerland, we see a magnificent dairy farm. As our milk supply is getting low, we decide that this would be a wonderful place to stop. To our amazement, we see Jim Smith, our old grocery boy, standing in the middle of his dairy herd.

Stopping for lunch in Italy, we see Gettys' Spaghetti printed on a cafe window. As we are waiting for our order, a sophisticated lady enters and we recognize her as Diana.

In Germany, the only American we see is Evelyn Herr, Lieutenant of the Air Force.

In an Australian hospital, we see Nancy Shults as a nurse, a profession which she has followed because of her infinite patience, or is it because of the handsome doctors?

While we are driving through China, we see a sign displaying these words, "George's Chop Suey", and decide to stop. Upon entering the restaurant, whom do we see but Anita Coon, chief can opener and bottle washer.

Arriving again in the United States, we notice a baseball stadium and stop for some entertainment. We particularly notice the batboy sitting in the Yankee dugout. Upon looking closer, we notice it isn't a boy, but Meeker's own Betty Jo Clark.

As we go into the General Store of Harlem, Kentucky, we hear the brass spittoon ring. Who spit into it, none other than one of our senior boys of the class of '55, Paul Meadows.

And as for Ernest Sparks, we understand that shortly after graduation he took to the hills.
